

ADVENTURE QUEENS
— WOMEN'S COMMUNITY —

REGIONAL CHIEF QUEENS

Welcome to Chief Queen-dom and thanks for considering donning the (invisible) crown, helping us with our aim of delicately smashing down barriers that prevent women from having outdoor adventures.

We provide physical and virtual spaces for women to connect, share and support each other. The local Facebook groups are one of the ways that we do this and we're now up to a whopping 28 local groups, which is all because of amazing volunteers like you!

The local groups are a more accessible way for the Adventure Queens community to connect with wild women in their local area – meet up and explore together, share favourite places and support each other... helping support the community in their quest for outdoors adventures.

YOUR ROLE

Chief Queens main roles within the local Facebook groups are:

- Approve new wild women who want to join the local AQ community, declining anyone who
 - isn't a woman (please remember though AQ is open to ALL women)
 - has no profile pictures (they may be a spammer)
 - posts on their page look a bit offensive or extreme views
 - Is a business rather than an individual.
- Check everyone is behaving and keeping their posts within the community guidelines. This means being kind and respectful to each other, no fundraising/advertising posts or any posts whereby there's business or personal financial profiting.
- And the best bit... engaging the community, both online and in real life! This could include:
 - Sending a welcome message to any new Adventure Queens
 - Reply to comments and share any thoughts and tips whenever possible – keeping the group engaged

JOINING THE VOLUNTEERS GROUP

We have a closed volunteers group on Facebook so volunteers have a space to share and support each other, whether that be asking questions about their group, organising meet-ups with neighbouring groups (nothing like some neighbourly love!) or sending high fives from afar!

You'll also receive an induction pack with more ideas of things you can do as a Chief Queen and of course we'll always be on hand to support!
